NATIONAL GUARD NOW IN FRANCE

By Telegram to The Freeman.
With the American Army in France, No. 30.—Every branch of the American National Guard is now represented in France.

The militiamen are being trained as rapidly as possible for service at the front.

Correspondents were permitted to send out this information today for the first time.

The American militiamen have been arriving steadily from the other side and are quartered in various villages. All have been deeply touched by the warmth of the reception given them by the French people and all have been thrilled by the new scenes and adventures before them.

With every American state represented the French people encounter the views and ideas of all parts of the Union and it is a significant fact that the enthusiasm and determination to win is just as deep in the men from the west or east as it is from the south or north.

The French view with each other to make the Americans feel at home after their long 3,000 mile trip. Brass bands blared American rag-time and the streets of the towns and villages were decorated with flags.

The men are now hard at work in their camps and are reported to be making fine progress.

BRITISH STATESMAN URGES PEACE OFFER

Lord Lansdowne Would Have Allies State War Aims in Plain Terms in Order to Hasten End of the War.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
London, Nov. 30.—Re-statement of the Allies' war aims, with possible revisions, by the supreme inter-allied war council which opened in Paris yesterday, was regarded today as much more likely as a result of the remarkable letter on peace written by Lord Lansdowne.

In his letter, which appeared in the Morning Telegraph, Lord Lansdowne expresses the fear that civilization will be completely wrecked if the world conflict is allowed to continue much longer and argues that Germany should be assured that it is not the wish of the Entente that she should be wiped out of existence.

A number of big developments, all bearing upon peace, have taken place within the past forty-eight hours. Roughly grouped they are:

1.—The assembling of the supreme inter-allied war conference in Paris with the possibility of an expression on peace.

2.—The convening of the German reichstag in Berlin and the declaration of Chancellor von Hertling that Germany is ready to open peace negotiations with Russia regarding a separate peace.

3.—The revelation that Sweden has been acting as an intermediary between Russia and Germany for the arrangement of an armistice.

4.—The Lansdowne letter. A big sensation in political and government circles was created by the Lansdowne letter. Lord Lansdowne is a statesman of the first rank and is one of the best known men in public life in Europe today. He is affiliated with the Conservatives and was a member of the cabinet when Asquith was premier. Anything that he says or writes carries great weight.

Lord Lansdowne estimates that about 24,000,000 men are now engaged in the mighty conflict that is drenching Europe with blood. After painting a dark and horrible picture of the slaughter and of the Europe of the future if it is allowed to go on, he pleads for a new peace expression from the Entente Powers embracing these principles:

1.—That Germany shall be assured of the fact that the Allies do not wish to crush her;

2.—That assurances shall be given to Germany that the people may choose their own form of government without interference from any of the nations now at war with her;

3.—That guarantees shall be given Germany that she shall have a place in the sun in a commercial way after this war;

4.—That "the freedom of the seas" shall be considered as one of the peace terms;

5.—That a league for the enforcement of peace shall be formed at the end of this war.

It is feared that the letter will have the result of reviving attacks on the Lloyd-George government.

LOCAL BOARD OPENS KINGSTON OFFICE

Division No. 2 Headquarters Will Be at Kingston, Provost Marshal General Having Decided Kingston is Most Central Place for Division.

Acting under orders of the Provost Marshal General, the local board for Division No. 2 of Ulster county, has opened an office in the Hasbrouck building at No. 44 Main street, and all mail matter intended for the board should be sent to that address instead of being sent to Stone Ridge or Lake Katine as formerly.

The office of the local board for Division No. 2 is opened at Kingston for the reason that this city is most centrally located for the district. The members of the board are Charles C. Hardenbergh of Stone Ridge, Cornelius Dumond of the town of Ulster and Dr. James Krom of Saugerties. They have held their meetings at Stone Ridge, except when examination of conscripts took place, when such examinations were held in the Grange Hall at Lake Katine.

On account of the extended area of the territory comprising the division, it was determined by the Provost Marshal General that Kingston would be the most central place for the headquarters of the local board and such headquarters were therefore established in the Hasbrouck building.

Slight Fire Thursday Night.

Fire caused by an overheated blast furnace, shortly before 7 o'clock on Thursday evening, burned some of the wood work in Laxton's foundry on Prince street, between Grand street and Hasbrouck avenue. The fire was soon extinguished by the Central and Willyet trucks. The damage was light.

Thanksgiving at the Jail.

Prisoners at the county jail here were not forgotten on Thanksgiving day. They were all treated to a tempting chicken dinner, with all of the trimmings.

18 MINERS CAUGHT IN GAS EXPLOSION

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Christopher, Ill., Nov. 30.—Rescuers early today were working frantically in their efforts to reach eighteen men imprisoned in the 600-foot level of the Old Ben Coal Corporation New North mine by a gas explosion.

Before dawn the rescue squads had reached the 500 foot level and were confident they would come to the entombed miners before many hours.

Mine officials, however, expressed doubt that any of the imprisoned men will be found alive.

The state mine rescue car located at Benton arrived early today, bringing a staff of physicians and nurses. A score of physicians and surgeons from nearby towns rushed here in automobiles and are on hand to give all possible medical aid to the miners.

The explosion wrecked both the main shaft and the air shaft of the mine. The heavy cage hurtled through the top-shaft house and wreckage was scattered for a thousand yards from the mouth of the pit by the force of the explosion. The cause of the explosion is as yet unexplained.

But for the fact that the explosion occurred on a holiday hundreds of men might have been entrapped. Seven hundred men are ordinarily employed in the mine but at the time of the explosion most of the men were at home and only a small force of repairmen was at work.

Fire followed the explosion but advanced early today said the flames were under control.

Rescuers found their work hampered by gas fumes which came from the entrance to the mine shaft and many of the workers were overcome by gas and had to be attended by physicians. The rescuers were compelled to work in shifts as a result.

The scenes at the mouth of the mine were heart-rending. When the news of the disaster spread through the little village, wives and mothers of the entombed men rushed frantically to the mine, many of them carrying their babies in their arms.

A silent, fearful group of women and children are watching at the mouth of the mine and hoping against hope for word that the imprisoned miners are alive.

CHURCH SERVICE FLAG UNFURLED

With simple exercises in keeping with the present serious times a beautiful service flag purchased by the mixed choir of the church was unfurled at Livingston Street Lutheran Church on Thanksgiving Day at the close of the morning service.

The audience standing sang "The Star Spangled Banner." The pastor briefly mentioned the donors of the flag, the names of our country and then introduced Mayor Canfield as the speaker for the occasion. The speaker dwelt upon the present troublesome times, of our duty toward our country and of the significance of the flag which was being unfurled. The flag stands for just as much as the service which these men who are represented by a star render their country.

The flag was unfurled by Miss Amanda Luedtke, a member of the choir and sister of one of the boys in the service. The flag has twelve stars. The name of the boys who are serving our country follow:

Franz Hahn, Fourth avenue and Ulster street.

Edward Luedtke, 31 First avenue.

John Kruger, 60 Second avenue.

Theodore Schubert, 311 Second avenue.

Louis Schubert, 263 Hasbrouck avenue.

Elmer Hootger, 132 Second avenue.

Paul Schleede, 76 Crane street.

Henry Bode, 66 Ravine street.

Robert Iseman, 24 West O'Reilly street.

Louis Wiedemann, 167 North street.

William Kruger, 48 Hooker street.

George Tietjen, 29 Grove street.

In conclusion the audience united in singing "America."

Fast Train Discontinued.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, Nov. 30.—The Pennsylvania Railroad Company today announced that it had withdrawn from service the Broadway Limited, its twenty-hour train between Chicago and New York. The action was taken at the request of the general committee operating the eastern railroads and is a war measure.

Ship Lost at Sea.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Buenos Aires, Nov. 30.—The Norwegian bark Socotra which sailed for the United States with a cargo of lime, is believed to have been lost at sea in a storm. A number of life belts stamped with the name of the vessel, have been washed ashore. The Socotra displaced 1,710 tons and hailed from Grimsland.

POUNDING GERMAN ARMY IN ITALY

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Rome, Nov. 30.—The 15-mile German front between the Brenta and Piave valleys, in the Venetian Alps, is the anvil upon which Italian, British and French troops are now pounding with sledge hammer strokes.

Even the knowledge that the Austro-German drive into Italy is a "Hindenburg offensive" planned and directed by the old German warrior himself has not been enough to inspire the Teutons to successful assaults.

Dispatches from the front today told of heavy artillery duels around Monte Grappa and Monte Tomba and all along the Piave river from Quero to the Adriatic Sea.

On the Asiago Plateau the Italians delivered a number of sharp attacks, dislodging the Germans from some of their advanced positions.

The battle of the Piave, which opened on November 13, has come to a deadlock and today there were no sign that it would be broken soon. The Germans failed utterly to break through on the Asiago Plateau and get in the rear of the Italian armies standing on the Piave river, but have not yet given up their attempts.

Even now they are believed to be massing troops for another blow.

According to information secured from prisoners, most of the army groups in the invading army are commanded by Austro-Hungarian generals and many of the officers were called from the eastern front.

One army group is commanded by General von Keovess, who won fame under von Mackensen in Galicia, another is General Krobatin, who fought in Roumania. Von Buelow is the only German commanding an army group, according to this information. All however, are under von Hindenburg.

Married Men May Volunteer.

A new recruiting rule now admits married men, but no draft registrant may enlist after December 15 of this year, and an active campaign to secure enlistments in the service is now being carried on under the direction of Major Greene, who is the recruiting officer for the Poughkeepsie district which includes Ulster county.

Postmaster W. C. DeWitt has been designated to have charge of enlistments in this vicinity, and all interested are requested to get in touch with him.

Major Greene states that congress has now made provisions for the families of married men, so that they can now enlist without imposing a hardship upon their families. Each married man must give to his family $15 out of his soldier pay each month. In addition to this the government awards the wife $15, which brings her income to $30 a month.

If there is one child, the government allows $25, making the income $40 a month, for a wife and two children the government allows $32.50 or a total of $47.50. The limit put on this is that no soldier's family will receive more than $50 a month for dependents.

It will be seen by this ruling that married men who in the past have been anxious to enlist and do their bit, but could not forsake their families are thus enabled to join up. The advantage of enlisting is that they can serve in any branch for which they may be best qualified.

There is also an opportunity for skilled workers in the air service of the U. S. Army. The air fighters need the backing of skilled men to keep each airplane ready for instant and constant service, and there is room for picked men to be non-commissioned officers.

Those interested in the air service can secure a list of the kind of skilled workers needed by getting in touch with Postmaster DeWitt. All applicants must be physically sound, white and from 18 to 40 years of age.

Two Roses Should Agree.

This morning the big coal delivery truck of the Kingston Coal Company ran away down West Chestnut street and crashed into the stone wall at the foot of East Chestnut street and Broadway knocking a big hole in the wall and wrecking the auto.

At the time the two men in charge of the truck were busy unloading coal at the residence of H. E. Brown at No. 15 West Chestnut street, which is about midway on the steepest part of the decline. They had blocked the wheels, but from what could be learned the blocks gave way and the auto started on its mad dash gathering speed as it descended the hill until it was going at terrific speed. Fortunately no one was injured.

Two Roses Should Agree.

This morning a young woman called to see Recorder Lang at the city hall and lodged a complaint against a neighbor who resides in the same house with her down town. She said that her name was Rose and the other lady's name was Rose, but for the past few years the other Rose had been picking on her. Recorder Lang observed that he thought two Roses should agree and the Rose who called to see him agreed, but said it was the other Rose's fault. The court said he would send the other Rose a letter.

On Monday evening, December 3, at the Grange hall, there will be moving pictures. Bitten by a Dog.

Miss Garvin, who is employed at the Willyet Inn, was bitten in the foot Thanksgiving day by a dog owned by Anthony Gardeskie of 56 Third avenue. The owner of the dog was notified by the police to be in court today with the dog. His young son brought the dog this morning and Recorder Lang directed it to be placed in the gasometer, which was done.

STATE TROOPERS TAKEN FOR BANDITS

Regular Moving Picture Thrillers in a Saloon Near Utica Without Hearsal or Intention.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Albany, Nov. 30.—War may be all that Sherman claimed it is and war documents as dry as Washington during war times. But occasionally a document finds its way into the official files that indicates there is a lighter side to military duty and that the proverbial dryness of the official documents like the Sahara of Washington is not always what it is cracked up to be.

Witness a report just filed at the adjutant general's office here. It simply awaits the deft touch of an experienced movie writer to be turned into a two reel thriller. A dash of romance in the form of a beautiful heroine, a little padding for color and to the report will blossom into a full fledged movie scenario. Read for yourself the official document which today reposes in Adjutant General Sherill's steel filing cases amid other documents of war.

"On Wednesday of the present week while I was inspecting the detachment at Delta Dam," reads the report which is from the pen of the commanding officer of first battalion of the State Guard of Utica, "I was informed by Lieut. H. V. Bell, commanding that two days previously, two members of the state police arrived in the vicinity of the dam and proceeded to make a case against an individual in the vicinity who was selling liquor without a license. The two members of the state police disguised themselves in tattered clothing and tying their horses near the hotel they intended raiding, went inside. Then they asked for a drink of liquor and were about to be served when the proprietor's wife approached trouble, grabbed for the evidence. Thereupon, the two police drew their revolvers and covered the man and woman behind the bar."

"Enter a member of the New York Guard, Lieut. Bell's first sergeant, coming from one side of the dam, at this moment passed the hotel which the state police were raiding. He noted the two horses tied nearby and, prompted by curiosity, peeped in one of the windows of the bar-room. He saw two men with drawn pistols holding up the man and woman behind the bar, and believing that a crime was being committed, drew his own Colt 45 and hurried around to a door, and entering quickly got the drop on the two state police, ordering them to lay their guns on the floor. They promptly obeyed then revealed their identity to the sergeant, showed their badges, and were permitted to finish the raiding process. The sergeant leading such assistance as was needed."

The foregoing despatch said nothing of the fate of the "Bolshevik government" headed by Lenin and Trotsky, but indicated that it had collapsed or else had voluntarily retired from power.

BRITISH ARTILLERY POUNDING CAMBRAI

By Telegram to The Freeman.
London, Nov. 30.—Hundreds of British cannon, massed along a 12-mile strip of front between Incheby and Crevecoeur, are raking the German defences of Cambrai with a never ending storm of steel.

Trench lines, redoubts, dugouts, blockhouses, pill boxes and all forms of German defences are being shattered day and night by the British guns. Great guns have been moved up as close to the front as deemed safe.

Engineers with an army of workmen followed in the wake of the British when they launched their drive in front of Cambrai on November 20 and highways and railroads were constructed as rapidly as the British lines were extended. This enabled General Byng to move up his artillery and great quantities of ammunition almost as rapidly as the British stormed their way forward.

There was a renewal of infantry fighting in the region of Bourlon, three miles west of Cambrai.

During a lull in the bombardment in that sector the British attacked the German positions and captured some prisoners.

The prisoners declared that the British artillery has so effectively cut off the German communication with the rear that they had had nothing to eat for several days and were short of ammunition. All of the roads leading up to Cambrai and beyond are kept under a constant cannonade.

Raiding activity is increasing on the West Flanders front along with the artillery duelling. On the front held by the Belgians there has been a sharp burst of local fighting.

THE PRICE OF CANNON FODDER.

By Mary Austin of The Vigilantes.

The following proclamation appeared on the walls of Warsaw last year, just before 100,000 families were expelled to wander in the ruins of devastated Poland.

"The Government suggests that mothers having children should send them to Germany to be brought up and educated. Mothers who are willing to make this arrangement will receive the sum of 150 marks for a boy and 100 marks for a girl. No other aid will be given.

"(signed) Governor General Von Beseler."

It was to make this transfer of cannon fodder unavoidable that the families were expelled, and yet strange to say there were many Polish families who preferred to see their children die rather than have them brought up as Germans. Terrible and inhuman as it is to permit children to starve to death, I am not sure it is not the lesser crime, even for Germany, than to bring them up in the German ideal. To take a Polish child with its heritage of liberty loving, of heroism and genius such as have distinguished that race, and make of it a mere bestial unit in a fighting machine, what greater offense can be against the child and the future? It is a heart-rending thing to read there are no more children under seven left alive in Poland, but it is better than the other.

This cold-blooded purchase of boys and girls under present conditions, arouses the question whether or not a German victory would not mean a revival of chattel slavery.

It will not be easy to make Germans of Poles, even by taking them young. There are inherited strains in that blood which may resist even the insidious enslavement of the mind which the German Government knows so well how to practice. No one can doubt now that Germany will not hesitate in the future to use physical restraint in these unfortunate children of adoption should they show signs later of not having taken the German virus. We must remember that our own liberty has in it some drops of Polish blood, which makes us a little more than brothers in sympathy to this unhappy people. Mothers of America who give their sons to this war must remember that there are other mothers confronted with a more terrible alternative.

THANKSGIVING SERVICES HELD

Thanksgiving Day morning Thanksgiving services were held in the Delaware Avenue Tabernacle by the Evangelical Churches of the city, and were largely attended. The Rev. J. L. Leeper, of the First Reformed Church, preached an intensely patriotic sermon and outlined in comprehensive fashion the reason why we were at war with Germany. The Rev. Dr. C. G. Ellis of the Roundout Presbyterian Church presided and the song service was led by the Rev. M. F. Stowe of the Church of the Comforter, assisted by Irving B. Wood who played the organ. The Rev. A. K. Fuller of the Warts Street Baptist Church read the president's proclamation and the Rev. T. H. Barnagwanata of the St. James M. E. Church offered prayer. The free will offering was turned over to the Industrial Home.

Thanksgiving at St. John's. Surely the pleasure of giving is becoming more and more deeply appreciated in this community. On Thanksgiving morning the congregation that attended service at St. John's Church were astonished and delighted at the more than bountiful accumulation of fruits of the harvest of every sort that adorned the altar filled the chancel were piled up in the baptistry and against the lectern, while every window bench held its load of fruit and vegetables. There were fruits of every sort, water, vegetables, potatoes, cereals, sugar packages of crackers, home made bread, tea, coffee, jellies and canned fruits, all such abundance, that after the service the rector, the Rev. J. L. Blair, Larned assisted by the Boy Scouts left generous baskets of good things to eat at seventeen homes. In addition the collection taken up as the offertory amounted to over $25 and was sent to the Industrial Home.

The sermon subject was "The Call of the Church to the Soul of the Nation" and Mr. Larned took as his text these words: "What doth it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul?" Mr. Larned showed how out of this world war England, France, Italy, most of all Belgium have found their soul, while Russia is even now groping in search of her soul of liberty. As for our land the past history of these United States proved indisputably that this is a nation possessing a soul though today it may need a reminding. Already we have begun this task as is shown by the last work being done in every Christian faith throughout the nation in behalf of the Christian manhood of the fighting men of our own and the allied forces. In finding the soul of this nation Mr. Larned called attention to the unity of all of the Protestant forms of Christianity, to an extent never before reached as note the work of the chaplains of every denomination under the wonderful leadership of Bishop Lawrence of Massachusetts and through the Y. M. C. A. The good that this unifying of Protestant forces is accomplishing in this war will far out-reach the way is even now outreaching it in the unifying of Christian missions thus removing one of the greatest hindrances of the spread of Christ's kingdom in the yet un-Christianized world.

But the preacher considered four things as absolutely necessary in this nation is to find and hold its soul. They are: unity, not by small groups of people here and there but by the whole nation upon its knees, repentance that is a correcting of our past sins of omission and commission, service and that to the very limit of human possibilities and from each and every one of us, and finally, saving, not just for the sake of economy but that others may have and live. With all the due thankfulness for the plentiful yield of the harvest, which with care will provide for all through the winter, Mr. Larned considered the even greater thankfulness to be due to the fact that this nation is indeed finding its own soul.

A TRYING ORDEAL. By RAY BURNHAM. The big ruffian tried to edge me to one side but I held my place. "Everything gone but section eleven," the ticket seller had said. "I'll take lower berth eleven, then," J. B. Cole said. "I spoke quickly."

have weighed two hundred and eighty pounds. To make it worse he was a wiggling, uneasy thing. "Hard work for me to sleep on a train, as it is," he said. "Upper berth—yah! How will I ever get up there." "There is a ladder," I observed curtly. "And it's narrow and shallow. Reckon I'll draw the curtain and sit up, hey? Anyhow, till midnight—what say?" "I think I'll take a smoke," I said, and arose. I had to feebly clamber over that mountain of flesh. I got over one knee of the sprawled-out monster. There I stuck. He had to help me over the second knee. I reached the smoking compartment flustered. A perfect cigar calmed and soothed me, once away from that sprawling, lurching absurdity. I thought of Isora, and life became sweet again. I was going to Springfield to marry Isora. The wedding was to be the next afternoon. "For Isora's dear sake!" I whispered to myself. "I'll be humanitarian—aye, charitable." I went back to the section. I took the other seat, I smiled, I tried to be jolly. "Look here," I proposed to the bulky bundle of humanity opposite me. "Don't you think you would be more comfortable in the lower berth than on the narrow upper one?" "Don't I think it?" shouted my companion. "Don't I know it?" "Well, I will exchange with you," I stated with impressive courtesy. "It will be more comfortable." "Huh!" growled he. "More comfortable—surest thing you know. Thank you."

and throat gave out a swanging distorted mixture of nasal notes and gutters. Hour after hour I tossed to a resonant snoring chorus. When I clambered down from my aerial perch it was broad daylight. I had searched for my cigar case first, finding, cherishing my usual ante breakfast smoke, and could not discover it. I found the lower berth vacant, poked around, did not come across the case, and wondered if I had not left it in the smoking compartment the evening previous. Thither I went. Sprawled in the biggest easy chair, complacently puffing at the last half of a cigar, was the human mammoth. "Yours?" he hailed, extending my cigar case—empty. "Fancied I found it on the car window. Rare weeds—ought to know. I smoked all three." "Thanks!" I said sarcastically, and pocketed the case. It was raining when we reached Springfield. That horrible giant was at my side as I went to the edge of the depot platform, where a solitary one-seated automobile stood. I hailed its driver. "Take me to—" And I gave number and street, designating the home of my fiancée. "Hold on—that's my way, too," blundered in my evil genius. "Room for one only," explained the chauffeur. "Nonsense!" uttered the fog-horn voice. "I can crowd in between you." And I shrank and shuddered as he sat half way over me. The machine started up. "This will do for me," observed my companion, as the automobile halted in front of the home of my beloved. He picked up his satchel and proceeded up the steps, leaving me to pry the chauffeur. He rang the door bell as I reached his side. I heard eager tones beyond the portal. The door opened—Isora. "On July 1," she cried and was about to turn her arms about me when she observed my companion. "Why, mother!" she exclaimed, "I thought you were coming." "It was changed my mind," called out the giant. "I—I hope you haven't come to—to meet me, Isora, I am anxious." "Why, no," I have related my prospective brother-in-law. And then he glanced at me. He poked me in the ribs playfully, but with a real edge. "I ought to be on two legs in a flat," he added to all. "I can't let the young man's name at the door, and I don't intend to try him out. Isora, he'll do—I approve. Of all the fields of a perfect man he's the best. I'll test it as soon as you're married, just on the next house and let five thousand dollars roll buy and sell it as my wedding gift." (Copyright, 1917, by Wm. B. Eerdmans)

A photograph of an Atlantic port from his return from the western front. He said mud cold and rain are the worst enemies of our boys over there. He added, "We are going to save our time about getting into this fight, but when we do get in we will clean up."

Thought All "Step" Grand. Nell's mother had been telling her the story of Cinderella, and the little girl was deeply impressed with the cruelty of the wicked stepmother. A day or two later while playing with several other children she heard Bobby's mother reprimand him severely for some misdeed. Rushing home she excitedly explained to her mother what had occurred and inquired helplessly: "Is Bobby's mother step?"

CAVALRY COMES BACK.

The War Department's recent announcement of its intention to organize forty regiments of cavalry came as a surprise. It is true the news had just come that the Australian cavalry had ridden down and overwhelmed the Turks at old Beersheba in Palestine, but all previous observation tended to show that at no time during the present war had mounted troops played more than a very small part in the operations on the western front. Since then the whole view of this matter has been changed by the accounts of the brilliant successes of the British in the Cambrai drive, victory there, or the possibility of victory, being attributed to the work of the mounted men and the tanks. Cavalry seems to have become the right arm of Haig's army and the armored tank its left. At all events cavalry has definitely "come back."

We read that one of the most picturesque features of General Byng's great drive, aside from the large use of the armored tanks, was the part played by the cavalry. The galloping troops captured village after village and even charged batteries of machine guns, cutting down with their sabres the entire crews of gunners. During this war many military critics have contended that cavalry is a thing of the past, but fortunately Field Marshal Haig clung to his horse troops throughout the weary months of trench fighting, believing that a chance to use them would come. It seems that the chance came when it was decided to risk a surprise attack without the usual notification to the enemy in advance in the form of a long bombardment intended to clear away the barbed wire barriers and weaken the enemy's fortifications generally. The accounts show that, without any such previous announcement, the cavalry quietly crawled forward, smashing through the barbed wire and even trundling across enemy trenches. Then followed cavalry charges through the lanes thus opened, the horsemen dashing up to enemy batteries and cutting down the gunners with their sabres. On the heels of the mounted men the infantry surged through the same open lanes demolishing the enemy with sanguinary and unexpected attack at close quarters.

The cavalry and armored tanks together appear to have revolutionized the methods hitherto employed in this war, bringing release from the tedium of trench fighting and giving the bored and weary waiting soldiers an opportunity for excitement, spirited action and even personal distinction. Indeed, it would appear that within the space of an hour war leaped out of the mudrum into which it had settled and went dashing and galloping back to the old picturesque and thrilling methods. Such a change is welcome even to the distant reader and no doubt carries a delightful thrill to all genuine soldiers.

HATE AS AN ASSET.

The Kaiser's astonishing recipe for victory—"united in hate and with God's help"—has brought to light a number of instances showing Prussian faith in the power of hate as a war weapon. It may seem incredible, but hate is preached as a solemn duty in Germany. Nothing is so invigorating, according to a German general quoted by ex-Ambassador Gerard, as to pass a night in dreams and thoughts of hate. Lisauer's Hymn of Hate, directed against England, attracted wide attention early in the war. Other vitriolic poems less well known followed in succession. Vlerodt's, for example, is in part thus summarized: "O my Germany, into thy soul thou must etch a deep and indelible hate. Retribution, vengeance, fury are demanded; stifle in thy heart all human feeling and hasten the fight. O Germany, hate! O Germany, hate now! O Germany, the time to hate has come!" Another example, "The Song of the German Sword," almost unbelievable yet vouched for, thus glows over the carnage among Germany's civilian enemies: "I have slaughtered the old and the sorrowful; I have struck off the breasts of women, and run through the bodies of children, who gazed at me with the eyes of the wounded lion." Was the like of this ever before given the dignity of verse since the dawn of time?

Unquestionably the Germans believe in devilish rage as an asset. For Professor Werner Sombart, of the University of Berlin, gravely declares that "hatred is the greatest force in the world to overcome tremendous obstacles." Even German children are trained to hate. The translation of a song said to be taught in German schools contains such sentiment as the following: "Over there in the cowardly trenches lies the enemy. We attack him. Strike dead everything that prays for mercy. Shoot everything down like dogs." Obviously the whole world must yield the palm to Germany in the matter of hate. But unfortunately we can hardly afford a smile of superior scorn, knowing that this torrent of evil passion is now directed especially toward Americans.

LITTLE LAUGHS.

"That widower seems all broken down." "Then why doesn't he get repaired?"—Baltimore American.

"Did you observe Appomattox day, Mrs. Nurch?" "No; we didn't plant a thing."—Buffalo Express.

Manager—"But how did a tomato raise such a bad jump on your head?" Actor—"Well, you see, the one who threw it forgot to remove the can."—Life.

Boss—"Has that fellow Everbrooke paid you anything on account yet?" Collector—"Only a compliment on my persistence, sir."—Boston Transcript.

Irish Sergeant (lecturing upon the rifle):—"Now, if ye'll listen and not interrupt, I'll tell ye all about it—and if anny av ye don't understand, shup me at oust."—Punch.

"If you were to be a candidate for office, would your wife vote for you?" "I am afraid," replied Mr. Meekton, thoughtfully, "that if ever I got so far along as to be a candidate for office, Henrietta would regard the whole political system as a failure and refuse to have anything further to do with it."—Washington Star.

Ecclesiastical Confectionery. One Sunday a young man from the north of Scotland, while walking out with his sweetheart, noticed over a doorway the sign: "Dairy and Confectionery." Wishing to give the young lady a treat, the youth entered the shop and asked for chocolate creams.

"I dinno sell chocolate creams on the Sabbath," said the old lady behind the counter severely. "But you sold sweeties to the woman that has just gone out," said the young fellow who indeed had seen the transaction through the window.

"Ay, some ecclesiastical confectionery, but nae chocolate creams," said the lady, and went on to explain: "Ecclesiastical confectionery is peppermint drops, pan drops and ginger lozengers, but nae chocolate creams."—Youth's Companion.

Resembled Dear Fido. A man of rather unprepossessing appearance had been devoted to a Chicago girl for a long time and somehow had got the impression that she was willing to marry him.

"What!" he exclaimed, when finally the situation was made absolutely plain to him, "You will not marry me?" "Impossible." "But you seemed to love me once. Your eyes brightened at my approach and often when I sat silently gazing at you I am sure you were greatly agitated."

"Yes, I know; but since you have cut off your side-whiskers you don't look so much like my poor, dear, dead Fido."—Harper's Magazine.

Only Chances He Had. Inquisitive old gentleman to passing youth: "Why do you carry that umbrella? There is no rain and the sun is not shining."

"I know," said the boy. "But when it is raining, father wants the umbrella, and when the sun is shining, mother wants it, and so this is the only kind of weather I can use it at all."—Everybody's.

U. S. CAMPS GROW QUICKLY IN FRANCE

(By H. W. Ross, a Californian with the U. S. Forces in France.)
"Somewhere in France," Nov. 18.
—Dear —: It is two weeks since I wrote you. I have been delaying the last few days, expecting to hear from you by the "next mail." The bulk of the "next mail" arrived two or three days ago, but dribbles have been coming through daily since. There's another due tonight and—here's hoping. All told I've sent you five letters since arriving here—don't know how many arrived.
Also I have been rather busy of late. I have been assisting in the promotion of an epochal event—the first American boxing tournament held in France. It took place Saturday night in a strange little theater on a crooked rue in a nearby city before an audience of 500 Americans—soldiers, sailors, marines and civilian employees of the A. E. F.—and 200 French, mostly women. The feminine sex are great fight fans over here. There was a special train from the nearby engineering and military camps and permission from the various commanders for the men to stay out after 11:30 p. m. at which hour ordinarily all but five per cent of the men must be in.

The lightweight championship of the Pacific coast was at stake—5,000 miles away. Stanley Burns, claimant of the lightweight championship of California, and F. E. (rept "Fighting") Huelet, champion of the northwest, who both are members of the regiment, put on the principal go. It was for only six rounds, and Huelet got the judges' decision. But a twenty-round fight has been arranged for three or four weeks hence and the argument ought to be definitely settled. There is no limit on the fight here and no reform element. All the fight fans ought to join the army and come on over. It has great possibilities.
All the American sports have been tried out over here already. Baseball created interest, but football was a sensation. The French heard of the inter-regimental games and now a big exhibition game has been arranged between the two best teams in this part of the country and a guarantee has been given by the French promoters to clear 4,000 francs for the regimental mess fund of the winning organization. They play only soccer over here.
It was while I was on a ticket-selling tour for the fights that I got my greatest insight into what is going on over here. Ordinarily a soldier doesn't see much. He stays close to his regiment, gets but a few hours of liberty each day and overnight passes seldom. He doesn't get far from the station. But I worked in a radius of several miles from what is rapidly becoming an "American base."
I have seen a New York skyscraper climb toward the infinite, a story a day; I saw square rods of concrete poured into forms that moulded a dam which impounded a lake and reclaimed the fifth of a state; I have seen new railroads fell their way across deserts and mountains and rivers. I saw the Panama Canal "before they turned the water in the cut." More spectacular these, possibly, but no more impressive than an "American military base" in the making. And certainly no busier.
On a certain day a few—a very few—months ago an American general stood on a certain spot and, shifting a pointing finger, said: "There will be railroad yards, and there docks, and there a rest camp and that building over there will be a base hospital."

And from that certain spot today one looks and sees what very soon will be yards, docks and camps and a hospital.
In one direction a string of low wooden buildings stretch as far as vision. They are ten abreast. Four hundred and forty of these buildings, each capable of housing sixty men. Twenty-six thousand troops they will accommodate. And within an hour's march are five other such camps.
"Merely a rest camp," it is explained now. "Troops will remain there a few hours or a few days between boat and train, on their way to the front."
A highway parallels the waterfront and it was on this that the American general stood the day he swept his finger in the circle and conceived the improvements they are becoming realities so rapidly. A town was within the sweep of his arm. It is and the lone rifle he carries, superimposed. Houses a century old are being razed. The space is needed for trackage.
On the other side of the road the docks are going in. Dikes are being built a quarter of a mile from shore and dredgers and hydraulic pumps are banking silt behind them. One long stretch is ready for the flooring and the bulkheads. Half a dozen pile-drivers are snorting. Scores of expert timber men—Swedes, mostly from the forests of California and Wisconsin, civilian employees are trimming piles, squaring timbers, laying planking. Further along men of the American engineering regiments are continuing the dike. A steam shovel is removing a hill, three yards at a bite. This job requires planking.

The work must be done by a stated date. It is labor against time. Troops are coming. Material is coming. Ammunition is coming. And this must be ready for them. The job contains the quintessence of haste—methodical, intense, intelligent, efficient. Here are working thousands—Americans, French and white-clad German prisoners, unsmiling, slothful, stolid, each gang with its pota guard, invariably small, in comparison both to his charges and the lone rifle he carries, superimposed. A construction locomotive passes with a trainload of rails, American steel. The engineer is in khaki and he wears the red and white hatband of the engineers.

Further along is a big four-story stone building that was a school house when Washington was inaugurated. It stands with all the dignity of its age in twenty acres of groomed forest and lawn. But now it radiates wooden extensions, extending inconspicuously beneath the limbs of the chestnuts. Open spaces hold barracks. A famous chateau on an adjoining estate is being fitted as officers' quarters. This is a base hospital—one of many. Its capacity will be nearly four thousand wounded and sick—three regiments.

The funeral was held Monday at 12:30 and was attended by many of his friends, relatives and old time neighbors of old West Shokan, where he formerly was in business, and where he was employed for thirteen years with D. N. Mathews. He will be much missed in this community. It was a kind husband and father and a good neighbor with a deep interest in the welfare of this little hamlet. He leaves a wife and two sons, Arthur and Stanley, to mourn his loss. Rev. Mr. Mattice of Kingston conducted the funeral services assisted by the Rev. Mr. Blanchard of the Reformed Church, of which he was a member. The Masonic service at the grave was in charge of Elva H. Bogart, with burial at Mt. Tremper.

K. H. S. WINS FROM ALUMNI

Large Crowd Sees Hottest Football Game of the Season Played in Kingston—No Score Made Until Last Quarter.

Thanksgiving was a most beautiful day, a most ideal football day. At 2:30 the K. H. S. and Alumni teams lined up. The alumni received the kick off, but were stopped before they had passed their 2nd twenty-yard line. From the first, the Kingston team held the Alumni splendidly. They made line plunge after line plunge. They tried forward passes and almost every other tactic known in football strategy, but without success. Kingston gained the ball and for a few minutes it seemed that she was going to score, but she carried the ball till within one yard of the Alumni's goal when she lost it. The Alumni punted it far down the field. Kingston's opportunity was lost. In the second quarter the ball was first in the hands of Kingston, then in the hands of the Alumni, consequently neither side was given the opportunity of scoring. During this quarter Bishop, Kingston's plucky little center was quite badly hurt but with the determination of the do or die kind, he went back into the game undaunted. The first half ended with the score 0-0. The second half started and Kingston received the kick off. Wheeler got the ball and before he was stopped had carried it well up the field. Then for the third time that day, Kingston's hopes for a touch down were raised, for before the only thing that prevented Wheeler from making a field goal was the fact that one of the goal posts interfered. But no, she failed to make her required number of yards in her limited number of downs, and the Alumni got the ball. Then it was only the matter of a few minutes when Kingston got the ball again, and this time the quarter having begun and the goals having been changed. Kingston seemed as the English in respect to German's west front, unable to be stopped, she placed the ball behind her opponent's goal and the score was 6-0. Johnson failed to kick the ball over and the score remained unchanged. From this time on until the end of the game it seemed that they just killed time, but still Newkirk, the Alumni's left half was hurt and his place was filled by Culliton.

The game ended with a score 6-0. It was Kingston's first decisive victory of the season. She has had two decisive defeats and two games, where if time had not been against her, she would have won. Yesterday it had not been for Wheeler, she might have lost again, but still Wheeler, without the holes made in the Alumni's line by Kingston's line, and without the help of Johnson, Beeres and Muller, would have been at sea. So leaving the field out, Kingston won and her victory was a victory in every sense of the word.

ball battle ever fought in Kingston. Much credit is due the Alumni for the spirit they showed in fighting, for it was clearly seen that throughout the entire game, her side was strictly on the defensive.

Headlinesman, Alva Buley. Empire, Carl Preston. Referee, Harry Campbell. Time of quarters, 12 minutes.

LEADER OF RUSSIAN WOMEN SAILORS. Russian women, having formed "Death Battalions" and proved their worth in the trenches in the places of men cowardly enough to desert, are again proving themselves the equal of men in the defense of the empire. The photograph shows Mme. Eudette Skvortzova, who has organized a number of Russian women into naval battalions. Several of the naval battalions have already been assigned to ships for sea duty.

Build Moonshades.
Mountain campers who scorn tents and sleep "in the open" have devised "moonshades" to shield their eyes at night, so that their slumbers may not be disturbed by the brilliant reflected light from the earth's satellite. The shade consists of a square of canvas stretched between the upper ends of two pointed stakes, which are driven into the ground in any desired position.

Empress Owned a Train.
One of the most luxurious royal trains in existence belonged to the Empress Marie of Russia, mother of the ex-tsar and sister of Queen Alexandra, says the London Observer. During her majesty's visits to our shores this palatial train used to trail for her at Boulogne at a heavy expense, and was ready at a few hours' notice to convey her across the continent when her visit to England was ended.

PROGRESS OF THE LAUNDRY INDUSTRY

The following paper was read by Arthur Wicks at the Rotary Club luncheon on Wednesday:

The commercial activities of the United States have been so varied, of such tremendous magnitude and of such very considerable achievement, that the average business man only becomes acquainted with the movement in his own limited circle. Some of the giant industries, and which have issued large blocks of stock are, of course, reported daily in the newspapers and their every business move is scanned with the interest that comes from a widespread ownership. It is, therefore, not in the least surprising that the average business man is totally in the dark concerning the growth and the present importance of the laundry business. With the exception of the dry cleaning business, there is no parallel service, and as this service takes care of a sanitary want the laundry business is most generally regarded as one of the great public utilities. There is this marked difference, however, the utilities, as a rule, secure a franchise which extends certain rights and privileges and with this franchise as a basis the earnings are anticipated and the value of the franchise running over a number of years is crystallized into a stock which, as a rule, finds buyers. The laundry owner, although his business is a public utility, has no franchise other than the franchise which he himself must create and which is the good-will of his patrons.

The early history of the business dates back to about 1865 when the first power laundries came into existence. A recent census by the Department of Commerce shows that there are in the United States 6,097 establishments which in 1914 did an aggregate annual business of $442,503,253.00. The first census was taken in 1909 and this second census taken in 1914 shows that there has been a substantial increase not only in the number of laundries in the United States but in the magnitude of their operations.

One of the most important facts developed by the census is the extent of the industry in respect to the number of persons employed. In 1914 there were 149,000 employees and these employees received in wage remuneration $59,471,000 or approximately 42 per cent of the gross business. There are very few industries in which the labor costs so great a percentage and this is partly due to the unfortunate fact that the laundry does not get an average daily business but must be prepared with an organization capable of handling largely increased quantities of work on any day of the week. For years and year it has been a tradition with the housewife to get her soiled linen away on Monday. This compels the laundries to do the bulk of the work on the first three days of the week and these peak loads, or overbalanced volume, makes a largely increased ratio of expense.

An idea of the laundry operations of the United States may be gleaned from the fact that the primary horsepower used is 174,881. The capital employed in this business is $98,055,000 and, in 1914, increased over the previous census 42 per cent. The average capital per establishment is $16,100, and in the present day a very considerably larger investment is necessary to compete with the established concerns.

The largest business is, of course, done in the larger metropolitan cities but it is a remarkable showing that in some of the smaller cities of 15,000 and 20,000 inhabitants the power laundry not only enjoys a big patronage but does a business by parcels post to the rural counties adjoining. The proper management of the power laundry necessitates a combination of skill on the part of the proprietor and in the technique of the business he must have some knowledge of chemistry, engineering and, in addition, the qualifications of a good business man.

The laundry business has come to stay. It is an acknowledged public utility and it now performs a service which has removed drudgery from the housewife and, in addition, has made possible an economy for every housekeeper.

NATIONAL W. O. T. U. MEETING.

Convention to Meet in National Capital Next Week.

By Telegram to The Freeman. Washington, Nov. 30.—First of the big drives for national prohibition will be begun here December 2, when the National Women's Christian Temperance Union will start a week's convention. Leading workers in behalf of the national effort will be here from many states of the Union. The recent dry victory in several states will be held up as the goal to be reached and efforts will be made to show that in every state that went for prohibition there has been an era of prosperity never equalled. Not only will they contend, has the poor man been able to buy more things for his family, but many of them have been enabled to start in small businesses, which they did with their savings from money that undoubtedly would have gone for liquor.

Miss Anna A. Gordon, of Evanston, Ill., is national president of the Union. The other officers and members of the standing committees include women widely known throughout the country. It will be emphasized by the convention that work now endorsed and handled by the government, looking to the moral and physical welfare of the soldiers was started more than thirty years ago by the temperance women. Efforts will be directed toward the newly convening congress for nation-wide prohibition, and the women will have a fine example in Washington itself, which will have been dry for six weeks when congress gets down to work.

Convention committees already named and which are hard at work to make the gathering a success are: Transportation—Mrs. Ella A. Boole, No. 1429 Avenue H, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Miss Catharine Adams, No. 1730 Chicago avenue, Evanston, Ill.

Convener of convention—Mrs. Julia J. Vayhinger, Upland, Ind. Sabbath and overflow meetings—Mrs. Mary R. Haslup, No. 2517 Calvert street, Baltimore, Md.

Seating—Miss Minnie E. Neal, No. 27 East Bay street, Jacksonville, Fla.

Musical director—Mrs. Frances W. Graham, No. 34 Park Place, Lockport, N. Y.

Literature—Mrs. Ella Hoover Thatchner, chairman, Washington; Mrs. M. M. Allen, Forest Hills, L. I.; Miss Addie A. Austin, Evanston, Ill.

GASOLINE FIRE ON FAIR STREET

A fire which might have caused considerable damage, had it not been checked in time, created much excitement on Fair street in front of the Freeman's Branch office Wednesday afternoon about 4 o'clock. A large quantity of gasoline had leaked from an automobile, parked in the street, and not being noticed by the owner, the car was driven away leaving the precious fluid on the pavement. A passing pedestrian innocently threw a lighted match into the pool of fire-water and instantly it was a mass of flames threatening the awning and plate glass of the stores located in the Cordis building nearby. When the blaze was at its height "Al" Miller, manager of the Universal Tire and Rubber Company next door, realized the danger, came rushing to the scene and assisted by Ralph Short soon subdued the flames with "Pyrene" extinguishers. After the excitement had subsided and the crowd dispersed Mr. Miller returned to his business very calmly with the empty "Pyrene" tank and now the question in his mind is "Who should pay for the chemical used in performing this heroic act?"

SEVEN TONS OF VENISON.

Aggregate Weight of Deer Killed During Open Season.

Albany, Nov. 30.—Approximately 175,500 pounds or more than eighty-seven tons of deer meat was the bag this season of hunters in the eastern Adirondacks. But the wily buck was so elusive that it required the combined efforts of 14,000 hunters to bag the 1,755 deer represented in these figures, according to data made public today by the conservation commission. A total of fifty-three black bears were also killed by the small army of hunters.

The figures made public today were compiled by the game protectors of the Eastern Adirondack Division of the commission and cover but four counties. Statistics covering the entire Adirondacks and the Catskills are now being compiled by the commission.

Hamilton county led with 8,442 reported hunters and 1,312 deer and 40 bear. The latter figure is a most exceptional one, conservation officials say. Warren county was next with 2,551 hunters, 276 deer and 13 bears. Saratoga county with less deer hunting territory was third with 1,150 deer hunters and a total of 137 bucks. Washington county reported only 380 hunters who took 1 deer.

According to the commission, each deer produces about 15 pounds of dressed meat.

"GOOD GRACE" ANNABELLE.

Original Night at Opera House Tonight.

The best comedies of the past few years will be presented at the Kingston opera house this evening under the direction of Arthur Hopkins. The company has been traveling extensively through New England, where it has been receiving much favorable notice. Much of the success, according to Portland newspapers, is due to the high quality of the company that interprets it, but in itself the lines are bright and the situations ingeniously worked up. The plot is unusual; Annabelle has been married in a mysterious manner in the west when only 16 years old, marriage being followed by an abduction, but after the marriage the husband disappears. Annabelle has a big income and plenty of spinelous and inefficient friends. To this over an impecunious period, she takes a position as cook at the seaside home of a millionaire, taking her friends with her. The comedy is entirely original and one of the best north-making plays that has come here this season.

Masquerade Ball.

On Saturday, December 1, the young folks of the Immaculate Conception Church will have in their school hall a big masquerade dance, the largest and the last of this year. An orchestra of three pieces, under the direction of Prof. Seiwald, will supply the popular music for dancing. The grand march will take place at 10 p. m. Kingston youngsters enjoyed some coasting Wednesday evening. A light fall of snow Wednesday, although not affording excellent coasting conditions, gave the youngsters opportunity of enjoying a little coasting sport; an opportunity which was taken full advantage of.

JUNIORS UNITE WITH SENIORS

For many years the rivalry existing between the two upper classes at the high school has been of anything but a friendly one. This year for some unknown reason or other unfriendly rivalry has ceased to exist. The classes are marching hand in hand and in turn are lending a helping hand to the two lower classes. Tonight for the first time in the history of Kingston the Seniors and the Juniors are going to give a dance, each class defraying half of the expense and the proceeds will be divided equally between the classes. Muller's orchestra will furnish the music and for 75 cents a couple you will have from 8 till 1. The dance will be chaperoned by Mr. and Mrs. Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Connelly and Miss Edith Case. The alumni are the only outsiders invited.

Favor Coarse Bread.

The refined white flour now generally used is a comparatively modern innovation, the process for its development having been perfected within the last half century. This flour produces bread highly pleasing to the eye and palate, as compared with the coarse brown bread of our ancestors, but there is a growing tendency on the part of dietetic students and physicians to denounce white bread as destructive of health and vigor.

Meaning of "Manger."
The word signifying "manger" occurs in the New Testament only in connection with the birth of Christ. The word in classical Greek means a crib or feeding trough. According to some commentators it signifies the open courtyard attached to an inn.

OLIE LIKES TO TALK WHEN DRUNK

Mr. Contant of Union Center Said That Was What Got Him in Trouble—Given Another Chance—Other Drunks.

"Your honor," said Olie Contant of Union Center this morning when arraigned before Recorder Lang, "I will confess that when I drink I like to talk and that always gets me in trouble."

Olie came to Kingston Wednesday and had a few drinks too many and that made him talkative and in the mood to button hole the nearest person and confide his troubles. He was taken in tow by Officer Boyd and spent Thanksgiving Day in jail.

As Olie has a steady job helping the government build sub-chasers Recorder Lang decided that Olie at work was better than Olie in jail and gave him another chance, warning him not to repeat the offense.

Another plain drunk was Theron Durham who was picked up Wednesday by Officer Healey. Thanksgiving Day Theron was sober and Recorder Lang gave him a chance to return home and enjoy the holiday meal with his family. Theron is 41 years old.

George Johnson, the boatman, who was picked up for his own protection Tuesday and sent to jail to save his money, was discharged this morning by Recorder Lang and given back his check for $28.

JEAN RIEROCHÉ.
FAMOUS CHEF SUGGESTS A "VICTORY MENU."

Jean Rieroché, for some years a chef in the French Army, but now head chef at the Vanderbilt Hotel, New York, has submitted what he calls the "Victory Menu," which is a new war-time list of foods for the public to help save what is needed for soldiers. He suggests that the well-to-do guest should receive what he is accustomed to, such as terrapin, duck, lobster, etc., which would be of no use to the army. The famous chef believes the new menu will serve the double purpose of satisfying the demands of the public and at the same time conserving the staple foodstuffs for our fighting men. The following is a "Victory Menu" for dinner:

Torban Orysters
Shirred Egg Bery
Minced Chicken Gratin
Baked Potato

GERMANS ATTACK NEAR CAMBRAI

By Telegram to The Freeman.

London, Nov. 30.—The Germans have launched a powerful attack against the British southwest of Cambrai.

Advices from the front today gave no details but indicated that the assault, which was made near Gonnelleu, was pressed home with strong forces.

The scene of the drive is south of the sector where the big British drive on Cambrai was made and is near the point where the British and French armies on the Somme front join. This led to an opinion that the Germans might be trying to separate the two armies.

(Gonnelleu is eight miles southwest of Cambrai, five miles northwest of LeCateau and a mile and a half west of the Scheldt canal.)

Press dispatches received here said that the German drive was preceded by very violent artillery preparation, but up to the time the telegrams were sent the Germans had evidently been held in check all along the line.

Crawford Was Acquitted.

"Rev. Arthur Worthington," one time head of the Citizens' League of Dutchess county, whose name is supposed to be Samuel Oakley Crawford, was acquitted Wednesday at Goshen on the charge of grand larceny, on which he was tried for the second time, and now faces warrants issued in Dutchess county and Wilmington, Delaware. This ends one stage of a most sensational chapter in the checkered career of the suave ex-minister of the Presbyterian Church, whose activities in Dutchess and Orange counties led to his being untraced by the North River Presbyterian and indicted by grand juries in two counties.

The surviving relatives are his eleven children, seven daughters and four sons, Mrs. Margaret Dutcher of Ellenville is one of the daughters and Joseph Fisher well known citizen of Spring Glen, one of the sons.

Factory in Ellenville.

The handle factory in Ellenville, one of the new industries of that place, is now employing about 25 men. The weekly pay roll amounts to about $500.

A Farmers' Institute.

In the high school auditorium at Ellenville a farmers' institute will be held on Monday, December 3, and in connection with this institute the Ellenville Poultry Club will hold an utility poultry show.

Big Thanksgiving Trade.

A special Thanksgiving dinner was served at the leading hotels here on Thanksgiving day, a feature which many kingstons took advantage of.

Strict Accounting.

A business man requires those who handle money to account for all expenditures, holds an employee responsible for the full amount trusted to him and demands vouchers for all disbursements. Even then he may not be satisfied without a cash audit by an accountant. Material should be accounted for on exactly the same theory as cash itself (although possibly less rigorously), says Stephen Gilman, in Industrial Management.

Hold Your Temper.

Get mad if you must, but don't fly off the handle, is the advice of a sage. When you express yourself others see what's in you, and as a rule see less than they thought was there; but if you are silent you have them guessing, and the chances are that they will think there's more in you than there really is—which will be greatly to your advantage.

Stove-Heated Garden.

The garden of James Swartz of Holte, Dam, Mont., is heated by a stove from the inside, and is protected on the outside by a curtain which is lowered about it on a frame. The garden is seven feet square and consists of a series of terraces built around a hollow center to a height of ten feet. Mr. Swartz believes this arrangement will permit a longer growing season.

Had an Idea.

William was a clever youngster, but his cleverness sometimes led him into funny mistakes. Once when he was traveling with his family they stopped for breakfast at a restaurant. William was permitted to make his own choice of food, but after the waiter had gone he grew doubtful of his wisdom in choosing and said, "I wish I could counteract that order."

Valued Tablet.

A Babylonian tablet believed to have been written between 600 B. C. and 300 B. C., when translated at the University of Pennsylvania museum some time ago, proved to be one of the missing parts of the epic of Gilgamesh, regarded as one of the oldest and noblest poems in the world and said to have been to the Babylonians what the Iliad was to the Greeks.

Grinding Wheels.

In the manufacture of the modern automobile the grinding wheel plays an important part. In one typical plant, for instance, the grinding wheel stock room contains an elaborate system of racks for the wheels, and the statement is made that there are now in use 34,941 grinding wheels.

Grandmas Not So Old.

Esther gazed long and earnestly at the picture of a bearded and bespectacled little old lady that headed her reading lesson, "Miss Brown," she said, wonderingly, at last, "they don't make grandmothers nearly so old nowadays as they used to do, they?"

Serviceable Infant.

"Mama," cried Sue, "Boss and I are playing house and want baby for a baby, but the boys have got him for a bulldog."

As for the use of a family sheep for meat, such would be rare. "Led like a lamb to the slaughter" has more than a literary meaning. One who could see a sturdy steer felled by a hammer blow or an uncounted and squealing pig slashed in the throat, would turn from the sight of a lamb, without fight, held helpless while slowly bled to death. Most people like lamb or mutton, and most people require woollen clothing, but for both food and warmth the sheep-raising industry will depend upon commercialized flocks.

The idea of "a sheep for every family" is good in intent and purpose. Both manufacturers of woollen goods and meat distributors would like to see a larger supply of raw material. Sheep raising, however, is not like gardening, says the Albany Journal. To be successful it must be conducted in the open and on a large scale. Breeding itself is a large and complicated matter. Also, the nature of the wool-growing animal is unsuited to combined commercialism and domesticity. The family who had a sheep running around the dooryard would form an attachment for the animal that would cut the latter on the flooring of a family pet, that could be separated from its valuable wool only if the sheep's comfort were considered.

HOW OCEAN CABLE DIFFERS FROM TELEGRAPH LINE.

Although an ocean cable is in fact a telegraph line, it is so differently constructed that the rules for working land lines are almost entirely dissimilar. With the first long cables, great difficulties were encountered in sending through them a current of electricity of sufficient power to record the messages rapidly. The methods for overcoming these difficulties, and in use at present, are described as follows:

Keys which, when depressed, transmit positive and negative currents, are employed at the sending station in connection with the regulation battery. The current of the battery does not pass directly into the cable, but into a condenser, which passes it into the submarine line.

This greatly increases the force of the current used and serves to cut off interfering ground currents.

The instrument first employed in receiving cablegrams was a reflecting galvanometer. Upon the magnet of this instrument is carried a small curved mirror. A lamp is placed before the mirror and behind a screen in which there is a vertical slit. Flashes of light moving across this slit as the needles moved from left to right, indicated to the trained eyes of the operator the letters in the message being transmitted.

But this method of recording messages was found to tax the eyesight of the operator severely, a few years' work often rendering them almost, if not totally blind. Recognizing the fact that there must be something wrong with such a system, inventors set about repairing the defect, which resulted in perfecting the syphon galvanometer, which has all but superseded all other receiving devices.

A very pretty and unique wedding took place Thanksgiving morning at the Bloomington Reformed Church just before the regular Thanksgiving service, when Miss Catherine Steinhilber of Maple Hill was united in marriage to Clarence Winchell of Creek Look by the Rev. A. A. Zabriskie. The bridal couple entered the church to the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March, followed by many friends. The bride wore a blue traveling gown and carried a bouquet of roses. After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Winchell left for their new home at Hastings-on-the-Hudson where the groom is employed and where a newly furnished flat awaits them.

MILTON.

Milton, Nov. 30.—The opening week of the neighborhood or community home was a great success. 1,120 people attended the week's events. After the Monday evening entertainment by 50 Newburgh young people (of which mention was made in last week's paper), Tuesday afternoon Dr. Cady of Kingston spoke to the Red Cross members, which left no doubt in the minds of the workers that they must not let up for a minute no matter how many stories they may hear to the contrary that the men do not need the things we are making for them.

Wednesday the ladies fed over 150 and much interest was manifested in the building. On Friday afternoon 100 children came to the building and enjoyed games, stories and eats that had been provided for them. On that evening the Rev. Mr. Voight met over 100 young men there. Basketball and other games were enjoyed. Saturday afternoon a fine lot of boys did full justice in making their share of noise, too. Every Saturday afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock will be given over to the boys from 9 to 15 years of age. The climax was reached when on Saturday evening over 300 men, women and children saw many of the very best moving pictures ever shown. Messrs. A. J. Booth, Jr. and J. Westervelt Clarke operated the machine. The membership committee have gotten in some good work. Many families are now identified with the community house, and it is hoped many more will join in making this undertaking a success. On Saturday evening of this week, beginning at 7 o'clock, moving pictures will again appear. Admission 10 cents for children; 15 cents for adults. This will enable our people to save much in fares. We can stay right in Milton and see such fine pictures.

The young ladies of the community will hold a clam chowder supper and bazaar in the Community House on Friday evening, December 7, to which everybody, young and old, is invited. Come and spend a pleasant and sociable evening.

HAVE DATA READY
WHEN POLICE CALL

Police Department Making House to House Canvass Securing Names and Ages of Inmates to Ascertain Number of Voters.

At the request of the common council the police department is making a house to house canvass securing the names, ages and occupations of the inmates so that the census when completed will give the common council data necessary in making a redistricting of the voting districts in Kingston. With the women having the right of suffrage it means that it will practically double the number of voters cast at the next election and will mean the addition of about fifteen more polling places in Kingston.

The police are equipped with cards which they have to fill out and are taking the names not only of the heads of the family but those of the children as well. The department is now canvassing the First and Twelfth wards.

The census taking is necessarily slow and will not be completed by the first of the year as planned unless the residents of Kingston turn to and co-operate with the police.

The department is anxious to have the census completed and it can be materially assisted if the head of the family would make up a list of those in the family giving the full name, the age, including the year, month and day, of each one in the family, and when the police officer calls all that would be necessary would be to hand him the list and it would save time.

Aliens are also being listed. So far in taking the census the police find that the greatest time is lost in ascertaining the date of birth and age of each member of the family.

It is hoped that every family in the city will assist in making the census by writing down the required information.

The information wanted is the name, age, year, month, and day of each member of the family and the occupation.

THANKSGIVING DAY IN KINGSTON

Many Family Reunions Held—Soldiers Home on Furlough—Guardsmen Entertained by Kingston Families—Church Services Well Attended.

A number of Kingston boys, who are now in service, spent Thanksgiving Day at home with their folks, coming home to enjoy a brief furlough. So many men in khaki were seen on the streets here that the town, to a stranger, might have passed for some military headquarters.

Nearly fifty guardsmen, who are doing guard duty at the Ashokan reservoir, were also in the city for the day as the guests of a number of Kingston families, and it was a Thanksgiving treat that was very much appreciated by the guardsmen.

Some families were disappointed, for "their boys" could not eat his Thanksgiving dinner with the family, for "their boys" did not succeed in getting the day off.

In spite of the fact that there was a deep feeling of solemnity in the Thanksgiving celebration here, this feeling did not detract from the true Thanksgiving spirit, but added a deeper significance to the spirit of the day.

Many at Services.

The various religious services held were well attended, especially the union service held at the tabernacle, which was of a very inspiring nature.

At the Theatres.

Standing room only was all that could be had at the theatres, at both the afternoon and evening performances, a few moments after the doors opened. Special holiday features were provided at all of the theatres.

The football game at Athletic Field was also well attended.
